

Washing Instructions

Traditional college method: Splash through mud puddles and accidentally leave it out in the rain. Hang it out of your window to dry.

If you really want to wash it, here is the method recommended by the yarn maker:

- Machine wash in gentle cycle, or wash by hand in the sink with gentle soap (even shampoo) and skin-temperature water.
- Rinse completely and roll in a towel to remove as much water as possible.
- Dry flat.

Washing Instructions

Traditional college method: Splash through mud puddles and accidentally leave it out in the rain. Hang it out of your window to dry.

If you really want to wash it, here is the method recommended by the yarn maker:

- Machine wash in gentle cycle, or wash by hand in the sink with gentle soap (even shampoo) and skin-temperature water.
- Rinse completely and roll in a towel to remove as much water as possible.
- Dry flat.

Washing Instructions

Traditional college method: Splash through mud puddles and accidentally leave it out in the rain. Hang it out of your window to dry.

If you really want to wash it, here is the method recommended by the yarn maker:

- Machine wash in gentle cycle, or wash by hand in the sink with gentle soap (even shampoo) and skin-temperature water.
- Rinse completely and roll in a towel to remove as much water as possible.
- Dry flat.

Washing Instructions

Traditional college method: Splash through mud puddles and accidentally leave it out in the rain. Hang it out of your window to dry.

If you really want to wash it, here is the method recommended by the yarn maker:

- Machine wash in gentle cycle, or wash by hand in the sink with gentle soap (even shampoo) and skin-temperature water.
- Rinse completely and roll in a towel to remove as much water as possible.
- Dry flat.