The Hobbs-Shelley Series (1952-1957; 1958; 1959-1969)

The Hobbs-Shelley partnership began before the Gielgud-Richardson series with a series of Children's Hour programmes from 1952 to 1957 (adapted by Felix Felton). Hobbs and Shelley also performed in the January 03, 1953 performance of the Raymond Raiké adaptation of the William Gillette Holmes play. In 1958, a six part adaptation of The Hound of the Baskervilles was written by Felix Felton and performed by Hobbs and Shelley. None of these performances are known to exist.

The 1959-1969 series featured Hobbs and Shelley with scripts by Michael Hardwick. Many of the supporting actors of the Gielgud-Richardson series also appeared in this Hobbs-Shelley series.

See also the Documentaries and Other Performances Section for The Man Who Was Sherlock Holmes, a 30 minute biographical drama written by Michael and Molly Hardwick, but not featuring Hobbs and Shelley. Michael Hardwick also furnished scripts to South African radio (again without Hobbs and Shelley), four of which episodes are catalogued following this section.
