Step #	Description
1	Ink the Upsy Daisy stamp with Baja Breeze ink. Using stampin' write markers color the stems and the tops of the flowers directly onto the stamp.
2	Huff on the stamp to moisten the ink and then stamp it on the white tissue paper.
3	If you want images all the way around your candle create two stamped images on tissue paper.
4	Cut your stamped images fairly close to the edges.
5	Take a piece of wax paper and cut it so that it is not any taller than the candle. The wax paper should be long enough that it wraps completely around the candle and then some. Note: You will need to be able to have enough wax paper to hold on to.
6	Take your first stamped image and place it on the candle. Then place the wax paper on top and wrap the wax paper around the candle. Wing out the extra wax paper and pinch close with your fingers making sure the wax paper is tight against the candle.
7	Heat up your heat tool (embossing gun) for 30 - 40 seconds until it is nice and hot. Moving QUICKLY , wave it over the area where the stamped image is; be sure to keep the wax paper nice and tight. Every candle will have a different wax melting point, but you should see a change being to take place within a few seconds. As the candle heats up, the pressure from the wax paper should push the image into the melting wax of the candle, embedding the image and leaving your image intact.
8	You can do numerous images on one candle; just place another image and move the wax paper. It is best to try and not use the same spot on the wax paper for each image, but you can use 1 piece of wax paper numerous times.
