

The AAACEI Delaware Valley Section Presents

“Construction Management for the Comcast Building in Philadelphia”

Mark your calendars now for November 12, 2008

When preparing to tackle the construction of Philadelphia’s tallest office building, the Owner decided to bring an independent project/construction management firm to augment their staff. This decision made both financial sense and provided the Owner with the required resources needed to successfully complete this challenging project without the burden and expense of employing or developing these resources internally by using Primavera.

Presenter: Shawn L. Pressley, PSP

Professional Experience: Mr. Pressley, Hill International’s Director of PM Systems and Development, is a civil engineer with 10 years of experience in project management systems and development. He has expertise in Primavera and other project management tools and is exceptionally diverse and innovative with a proven track record of accomplishment in the design, planning, implementation, and execution of project management software solutions that are aligned with business processes and objectives. Mr. Pressley has been involved with many projects providing project controls and program management; cost analysis; CPM scheduling; delay analysis and construction claims analysis.
