

Speech Topics

1. Sting wrote, "That nothing comes from violence and nothing ever could," in his song "Fragile." In a 2:30-3:00 minute speech, support or argue against the quote, using examples.
2. Former Harvard president Charles William Eliot said, "One could get a first-class education from a shelf of books five feet long." If this is true, what kind of books would you choose to fill the bookshelf. If it's not, what is necessary for a first class education? Explain in a 2:30-3:00 minute speech.
3. Margaret Mead, an American anthropologist, said, "Never doubt that a small group of committed citizens can change the world. Indeed it is the only thing that ever has." Explain in a 2:30-3:00 minute speech how you would like to change the world and what you would say to others to convince them to work for the same goal?
4. "All television is educational television. The question is: what is it teaching?" said author Nicholas Johnson. In a 2:30-3:00 minute speech explain what television is teaching us and whether or not we should be listening.

Speech Topics

1. Sting wrote, "That nothing comes from violence and nothing ever could," in his song "Fragile." In a 2:30-3:00 minute speech, support or argue against the quote, using examples.
2. Former Harvard president Charles William Eliot said, "One could get a first-class education from a shelf of books five feet long." If this is true, what kind of books would you choose to fill the bookshelf. If it's not, what is necessary for a first class education? Explain in a 2:30-3:00 minute speech.
3. Margaret Mead, an American anthropologist, said, "Never doubt that a small group of committed citizens can change the world. Indeed it is the only thing that ever has." Explain in a 2:30-3:00 minute speech how you would like to change the world and what you would say to others to convince them to work for the same goal?
4. "All television is educational television. The question is: what is it teaching?" said author Nicholas Johnson. In a 2:30-3:00 minute speech explain what television is teaching us and whether or not we should be listening.