Permanent outdoor
Mandala project

2nd and 3rd grade students begin to paint the mandala they designed.

Kindergarten and 1st graders chose primary colors.

Christine was so happy to get to help the students of Kelly Elementary brighten up the pathway that leads through their school courtyard. Students got to design and paint three large (5' in diameter) mandalas using special paints designed to stick to the concrete. With permanent markers, the kids took turns creating patterns of basic shapes, working from the center out, then chose colors and filled in their designs.

4th and 5th graders made a sophisticated design.

One of three finished products.
