Arts and Crafts at Brooklyn Park

City of Portland
Parks and Recreation Dept.
Summer 2006

A psychedelic zebra made out of envelopes and torn paper strips.
Who says zebras have to be black and white?

Today's project: a ship's porthole.

Paper plates, pipe cleaners, popsicle sticks... well, it may not be fine art, but these quick and easy crafts are loved by kids. Christine worked at Brooklyn Park for the summer, offering hands-on arts and crafts from around the world for any kids that wanted to drop in and make their own totem pole, Chinese fan, Loch Ness Monster, aboriginal bark painting, lion mask...the list goes on and on.

Anders with his finished product.

A scary lion mask!
