Art and Literacy Classes at
Lynch Wood SUN School

A program of Metropolitan
Family Service
2006-07 School Year

Jonathon didn't speak any English at the beginning of the school year. Now he is quite fluent!

The kids created ceramic animals. Deleena's bunny turned out so cute!

Christine was hired by Metropolitan Family Service in the fall of 2006 to teach art and literacy to first - third graders of Lynch Wood Elementary School's SUN (Schools Uniting Neighborhoods) program.

"Creative Christine," as the kids liked to call her, taught her usual classes - mandalas, art history (including Miro, Picasso, Monet, Van Gogh, Matisse, Gauguin, and Kahlo), and ceramics - four days a week throughout the school year. Each class session also included a half hour of literacy activities.

An abstract painting inspired by the work of Joan Miro.

It's so fun to express yourself!

Christine worked with the sixth grade students of Lynch Wood's Campfire program to create mandalas on vinyl records which were hung in this display case for all to enjoy.
