Painting and Ceramics
Classes at
Whitman SUN School

A program of Portland Impact
Spring term, 2007

Kevin with acrylic landscape paintings on small canvases.

Christine worked two days a week as an art teacher for fourth and fifth graders at Whitman Elementary School's SUN (Schools Uniting Neighborhoods) program during the spring 2007 term.

Students made mandala records, self portraits, dreamlike paintings, and impressionist landscapes in the painting class.

In the ceramics class, students sculpted and glazed their own clay animals, heads, pots, and much more!

Glazing a clay horse.

At the kids' request, one class session was spent in the computer lab, where the students checked out Christine's website, blog, and online shop.

Such a sweet little mouse!

One word: mandala.
