Echo After is a four member alternative rock band from Grand Rapids, MI signed to FUSELAGE of Franklin, TN. The band blends an edgy, modern sound (similar to Kutless and Anberlin) with a passionate message of hope and love.

Since 2005, Echo After has impressed audiences at night clubs, concert halls, coffee shops, festivals, churches and camps across the Midwest. Though clearly a rock band, Echo After presents an array of sound touching elements of modern, alternative, and pop rock. Because of this mature grasp of music the band appeals to many age groups from pre-teen to adults.

Echo After released their debut full-length album "When I Fall Apart" December of 2007. The album, recorded in Dallas, TX, was produced by Grammy award winning producer Eric DeLegard (Bowling for Soup, Submersed, Drowning Pool) and mastered by Richard Dodd (David Crowder Band, Casting Crowns, Jars of Clay).

Echo After's desire is to create original music that rocks and touches lives. The guys have a passion for musical expression as a ministry. Beneath their catchy melodies and guitar riffs lie authentic lyrics that confront life tragedies and pain. Yet amidst the darkness of depression, shame, and death, they offer reassuring hope through Jesus Christ. Whether performing at a church or night club, EA openly shares their testimony.

One of Echo After's greatest assets is their stage show. Labeled by one listener as "the complete package," the band creates a unique experience providing musical entertainment backed by a powerful message. Front-man Drew Hamlet holds a degree in Youth Ministry and is no stranger to the stage. His ability to capture audience members through personal testimony is incredible.

Echo After has been blessed to open for the following national acts: Thousand Foot Krutch (Tooth and Nail), Pillar (Flicker), Need to Breathe (Atlantic), RED (Essential), Kevin Max of DC Talk (Northern), Day of Fire (Essential) 2x, Decyfer Down (SRE) 2x, Everyday Sunday (Flicker), Spoken (Tooth and Nail), Kids in the Way (Flicker), The Showdown (Solid State), and more.
